Superior Court

Murder Case Continued—Jurors Discharged Monday Afternoon—Divorce Matters Occupied Remainder of Term

The case of Mrs. Olive Murch Smith, divorcee, of Mexico, charged with the murder of her new-born baby, set for Monday, was continued to the February term of the Superior Court. The motion for continuance was made by Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls of Portland, who has been appointed by Attorney General Robinson to represent him on this case.

The validity of the appointment was questioned by Matthew McCarthy and Aretas Stearns of Rumford, attorneys for Mrs. Smith. Their contention was that the indictment charging Mrs. Smith with the murder of her new born son was void because the appointment of Attorney Ingalls was not properly worded, there fore he was not a properly appointed officer of the court and his presence before the grand jury at the time the Smith case was being considered was illegal. They contended that if a verdict of guilty was returned by a jury, an appeal would be taken and the verdict would be set aside by the law court, causing a second trial and a great expense to the county. There was no objection to the continuance by the attorneys for Mrs. Smith.

The facts of the case will be presented to the grand jury at the February term, for a new indictment. At this time Mathew McCarthy, attorney for Mrs. Smith, will be the county attorney, as he takes office on January 1. It was assumed by officials that the case would be prosecuted by Attorney E. Walker Abbott.

Mrs. Smith was ordered released under $15,000 bail by Justice Hudson.

The traverse jurors were discharged finally, Monday, after nine days service, with only two civil and one criminal hearing. This was one of the shortest jury sessions in many years.

Sentences Imposed

John Faddoul of Rumford, who was found guilty by a jury of accessory before the fact of arson, was sentenced to serve not less than two years nor more than four years at hard labor, at Thomaston. Before passing sentence, Justice Hudson said that the Maine statute recognizes in a case of this kind, two degrees of guilt; that of setting fire to public property which demands a heavy penalty and that of setting fire to private property, which carried a lesser penalty. The indictment did not classify the offense, therefore he would sentence the respondent for the less serious offense. An appeal was taken and Faddoul was released under $5,000 bail, furnished by Mrs. Emma S. Richardson and Fred W. Davis of Rumford.

Albert Maillet, who pleaded guilty to setting the fire to the Faddoul building, was sentenced to serve not less than one year nor more than two years at the State's prison.

The indictment returned against Harry Ellis for arson, in connection with the same case was nol prossed.

Napoleon Cayer of Rumford pleaded guilty of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and serve two months in jail with six months additional in default of payment. Probation was asked by counsel for Cayer, who is 77 years of age. His wife is also an invalid and requires constant attention. Cayer has a previous record, and was given the minimum sentence by the court.

Maurice Andrews, of Bethel, changed a plea of not guilty to guilty of larceny of furniture from the camp of Ernest Thurston, at Gilead, and was sentenced to serve eight months in the county jail.

The case of George Richardson of Bath who pleaded guilty to adultery, was continued for sentence.

The appealed case of Clifford Kennedy and Eugene Henry, Rumford youths, held for the illegal possession of short trout, was confirmed. The boys were given six months in which to pay a fine of $10 and costs.

Frank Daniels of Dixfield pleaded nolo to drunken driving and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Ralph Holt of Oxford, guilty of illegal possession and maintaining a nuisance, $100 fine, two months in jail, with six months additional in default.

Perley Robinson, Sumner, keeping and depositing intoxicating liquor, fined $100 and costs, with two months in jail and six months additional in default of payment.

The last hearing for the term was on Tuesday before Justice Hudson. This was an accident damage suit brought by Albert W. Farnham against Merton McAllister, both of Stoneham. Farnum sought to recover $63.59 damages to a Ford truck which was in a collision with a Chevrolet truck driven by McAllister, Feb. 25, at the junction of the North Waterford and East Waterford roads.

Farnum testified that he was driving a loaded truck toward Norway when McAllister appeared near the intersection, driving his truck. McAllister started to turn into the East Waterford road and then pulled back onto the left hand side of his road.

McAllister claims that he was proceeding toward North Waterford on the right hand side of the road, in two ruts. The Farnum truck was approaching him in the same ruts, on Farnum's left. McAllister slowed down and tried to jump the ruts to avoid the Farnum truck. He succeeded in getting the front wheels out, but the rear wheels were still in the rust when the accident occurred.

The witnesses examined were State Highway Officer Eugene H. Stevens, Arthur P. Locke, Frank Trimback and Roy Lord, road patrolman.

Judgement was for the defendent, Merton McAllister.

Cyrus Gallant of Rumford was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs with two months in jail and six months additional in default of payment on the charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

Aime Chabot of Rumford was fined $200 and costs, with two months in jail and six months additional in default on charge of illegal transportation.

GEORGE MILLS

After a lingering illness for two years, George Mills, 91, died at his home on Alpine Street, November 14.

The deceased was born in Dundee, Scotland, September 8, 1841, and went to Canada when nine years of age. Some time later, he ran away to sea, which he followed for many years.

About twenty-two years ago, he settled in Norway, on Alpine Street, where he has since lived. Until two years ago he was a woodsman and generally had work most of the time, because of his knowledge and experience. He attended the Methodist Church.

Norway Churches

Methodist

Very much interest is being made manifest at the attendance growth of our Thursday evening prayer hours. Already now up in the early twenties, we can just hope to keep in the ascendency. These mid-week devotional half hours are the essence of our religious activities, because in this close informal and homey atmosphere we can more clearly sense the soundings from the spiritual atmosphere of quiet thought. The pastor leads each evening in the meditative program. Much help is in evidence by these quiet moments when the true light and meaning of the Gospel rays are brought to bear upon the every day problems of living.

We had a splendid day of service and worship at our little white church last Sabbath, November 13. The Sunday school being a growing unit each Sunday. The contest which is still in anxious progress between the Methodist organization of Mechanic Falls and ourselves is warmly waxing, even in round numbers.

At the morning session of service, Miss Ona Yates began her new duties as our Sunday organist.

Last Sunday morning the minister brought a new testament declaration of "Challenge." The evening hour brought a goodly number to the song service with the junior choir rendering a special number. Miss Grace Howard brought an exceedingly helpful message to those young people of the Epworth League.

The Sunday evening services begin at the new time, 7 o'clock instead of 7:30, and we had a splendid attendance to this convenient seven o'clock service. The pastor's message was from the Book of Joshua, stressing the words "Be strong and of good courage.".

The Home Department on account of Thanksgiving, will be postponed to Tuesday, Nov. 29th.

Congregational

A large congregation listened to Rev. Mervin M. Deems of Baltimore, Md., last Sunday morning. He will preach again at the Sunday service next Sunday at 11 a. m. Church school at 10 a. m. and Young Peoples' meeting at 6 p. m.

About 150 attended the supper and "Shawl Pageant" at the church, Wednesday evening. Mrs. Grace Brown and Mrs. Tena Burnell were chairmen of the supper committee of the Ladies' Circle and served a satisfactory menu. The entertainment in the auditorium was in charge of Edward L. Burnell, with twenty-three taking part. Mrs. Edith Bartlett read the descriptive lines for each character who appeared, wearing a shawl befitting the story. The background was made of shawls, many being valuable heirlooms loaned for the occasion. A shawl from Roumania attracted much attention. A good sum was realized.

The young people's meeting will be held at 6 o'clock. Program:

Song Service
Piano Prelude .... Rubira Sharon
Speaker .... Rev. M. M. Deems
Thanksgiving Poem .... Charlotte Longley
Violin Selection, The Theme .... Irene Tubbs

Universalist

"Despise Not Littleness" is Mr. Rheiner's sermon topic for morning worship at 10 o'clock on Sunday. The augmented vested choir will sing "We Give Thee Thanks" by Ira B. Wilson, and "Thy Will be Done" by Edna L. Manifold, with solo by Clara Adkins.

At 11:10 a. m., the junior and senior departments of the Sunday school will meet together in the church auditorium for a special Thanksgiving service. The primary department will meet the same as usual, but will also have a special program.

The Junior Y. P. C. U. which has gained several new members at each meeting, will meet at 4 p. m. Constance Fogg will lead the devotional service on "Stories About Thanksgiving".

The Senior Y. P. C. U. will meet at 6 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m., the minister will present an illustrated dramatic lecture, the third in the present series on "An American Tragedy". Theodore Dreiser has taken a true story from the court records of New York to plead for sane sex education among our youth. It is a powerful play dealing with uncontrolled passion and throws the spotlight on contemporary hypocracies and a bankrupt morality. The beautifully colored slides were made from the play—not the motion picture. Because of the nature of this lecture no boy or girl under thirteen years can be admitted.

The B. G. McIntire Men's Club will meet on Thursday, Nov. 17. Supper will be prepared by the committee, Frank Beck and Steve Cummings and served at 6:30 p. m. There will be an election of officers and a talk by Hon. Donald B. Partridge on "What It Means to be a Congressman".

The Ladies' Circle will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. M. W. Sampson, Bridge street. There is work to be done for the December sale that will take place the 14th and 15th, so there will be something for all to do. A social hour will also be enjoyed.

Bush Clover

United States Agricultural Department at Work With New Pasture Plant

A big gap in New England will be filled if a hardy plant introduced from Manchuria comes up to the expectations of the experts of the United States Depatment of Agriculture. This is a drouth-resistant early strain of Korean lespedeza, a bush clover; and if successfully introduced here, will push the American lespedeza belt two hundred miles or more north. Many New England pastures turn brown and bare in summer, and these are the conditions under which the lespedeza makes its best growth. Ordinary Korean lespedezas do not mature north of the southern boundary of Michigan, but the new strain has matured in Middlebury, Vt., and at Augusta, Mich. It grows readily on the sour soil so characteristic of many New England pastures.

The new lespedeza, which looks so good for New England, New York state and Michigan, is an annual leguminous plant discovered growing wild in a Russian cemetery at Harbin, Manchuria, by P. H. Dorsett of the Department of Agriculture. It has been grown for three yeas at Arlington, Va., Middlebury, Vt., and Augusta, Mich. It matures seed in about two months after spring seeding, where ordinary Korean lespedeza must have nearly three months to make a crop. It has been grown successfully on experimental plots in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Minnesota, New York, and Wisconsin. Although Harbin conditions resemble those of eastern So. Dakota, the plant is not expected to find great favor in the West because the more desirable clovers and alfalfas do well there on soils that do not require liming.

The word is pronounced as spelled with the accent on the de, but "bush clover" is likely to become the popular name, if it proves a success in this region. Inquiries should be made of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A Bit of China

By Frederick M. Davis

In trying to speak in behalf of China and the trouble that prevails just now in the Orient—will say—I believe that the Chinese people are insignificant as far as war is concerned, and although congested as they are, they are not looked upon as a troublesome race and as a rule sympathy seems to lend a hand from our own shores and I believe they are fighting for a mere existence and will say, although Japan may need more territory, there is no doubt but what China needs more room, also. I believe the Chinese Empire leads the world in age, industries and population and the devastation that has taken place of late is nothing short of outrageous. In China we find the densest population in the world, millions live in boats and in floating gardens and in houses built on rafts in the canals and rivers. Outside China's gross habits she has many things to her credit in the way of early inventions that has astonished the world.

The Chinese are not surpassed by any people in the world, education is compulsory—all adult males are able to read and write and they possess a great knowledge of the elements of arithmetic and although they were the first to manufacture gunpowder—they are unwarlike, never used the powder until of late—in time of war and most of their time is taken up in useful trades. Like most all foreign countries they have their uncanny ways and barbaric nature.

It is quite well known that the Orient, as a country, stands at the head of the class above all others in most parts of the so called "Old World", in filth and corruption and no wonder that men of different nations flee to the arms of "Uncle Sam" for peace and protection.

For the sake of youth, innocence and the weaker sex, we can but feel in sympathy with this horror stricken part of the Orient—where loved ones part, where breaking hearts bow down in sorrow and woe, where the fangs of war reap their harvest in death and destruction.

From what I have read, most of us would call a Chinese physician worse than an ignoramous in the way of medical skill.

I do not exaggerate when I say they introduce a quantity of grasshoppers—ground to a powder—as a remedy for some particular ailments and as a cure for fever they introduce a soup made of scorpions and the fact that dried lizards are given as a tonic for "that tired feeling" would seem to most people almost incredible.

In boasting of their age old government and lifelong secluded habits, I will say that they have brought onto themselves a condition that is really peculiar and no American could read—as I have read—the facts that disclose or uncover the habits of China and her people without wearing a smile of abhorrence and a look of disgust.

In looking at a group of Chinese women that, being confined for ages as they have been, not being allowed to leave their homeland, like herds of certain breeds of cattle, only more so, they have rendered themselves universal and as a rule, have a sameness and like woodchucks—to distinguish one from the other is almost a thing impossible.

In spite of her peculiar ways and customs, much is credited to China in art and greatness.

The fact that the great wall of China is nearly fifteen hundred miles long—this alone makes China a land of repute and one of the most important found in history.

The Empire of Japan consists of a group of large mountainous islands and many smaller ones, the agricultural and manufactured products and exports are similar to those of China and confined on islands out to sea, as they are, they look upon China with envy and strike boldly to gain and hold a position on the mainland. The Chinese people are noted for their honesty, which goes a long way in all walks of life.

I have understood—late years—that the cruel torture of binding children's feet—when in their tender years— has been abolished and is practiced no more.

ADVERTISING A TWO-WAY PROPOSITION

Many people have a wrong idea of the matter of advertising. If they lose anything, instead of advertising the loss they wait for the finder to advertise the finding; if they want to buy something they wait for it to be advertised; if they want a place to live, they are apt to depend on someone to advertise the place. To be sure, the person who has property to rent or to sell takes the proper course by advertising, but the person in need loses time and perhaps lost articles by not advertising.

And many times the loser of an article would get it without cost by a move towards advertising it. There are several bunches of keys in the office that have accumulated over a series of years that the owners could have obtained without cost by calling to advertise them, and the loss of some of them must have caused trouble. A coat was brought into the office last year and was never called for that was well worth advertising. A leather mitten has been here several weeks that is worth much more than the 25c an advertisement for it would have cost.

A watch was recently picked up on a sidewalk and left at this office. An advertisement of the loss was telephoned in, but the owner got it without cost. Not every loser is as fortunate as that, but the logical thing is to advertise your needs. —Piscataquis Observer.

WHAT DOES ARMISTICE MEAN?

Read at the Social at East Oxford

What did Armistice mean
On that bright November day
As the word went down the line,
In those trenches, far away?

What did it mean over here,
When the news came over the air?
It meant that we all rejoiced
For the boys who were "Over There."

Do you remember the bustle
As we ran to the schoolhouse to tell
The glad tidings to the teacher,
Who forthwith pealed the bell

The children ran out in a panic,
Little knowing what 'twas all about,
But one thing they knew for certain,
That school for the day was out.

And then the parades in the evening,
'Twas a wonderful sight to see,
The soldiers in their khaki,
And the lads who sailed the sea.

What did Armistice mean
To those boys so far away?
It meant they would soon come home,
To the good old U. S. A.

When the time came for sailing;
Those lads so true and brave,
Some were shocked and wounded,
And some in a lonely grave.

And so, with each November,
On the eleventh day,
Let's all of us remember,
The boys from the U. S. A.

Those boys, the best in the country,
The bravest and the true,
Who fought for our Nation's freedom,
And the old red, white, and blue.

I'd Rather Read Poetry
BY HENRY DAVIS NADIG

Just Don't

Don't be clever,
Just be kind,
Heart's forever
More than mind.
Just be friendly,
Don't be smart,
Mind's forever
Less than heart.
Isabel Fiske Conant.

David Morton in his latest book of poems, "Earth's Processional" (G. P. Putnam's Sons), has held strictly to the title and theme which he chose. These poem are definitely and beautifully a lyric picture of the changing seasons—from the "First Snow" through Winter and Spring and back to Autumn again. The precise spirit of nature-worship which seems very evident throughout the poems is most beautifully expressed by the poet in his introductory lyric.

Adoration

Now the last light of amber day is dying,
Over the levels of this field in flower,
And in my heart a voice of worship crying:
O lovely, lovely is the earth, this hour—
Never so dearly held, so deep adored,
As now when I alone of weary men
Am witness how the fragrant-vestured Lord,
In the cool evening, walks His earth again.

From this revealing overture, what follows is not in the least unworthy of the poet's original intenion. For him every whim of the elements in all their varied manifestations has a subte meaning, is in some way a corollary to the existence of man. His nature is, like the mountain "A final thing, a thing beyond recall." He likes to watch "These hills put on a century of nights". The reader is especially conscious of this poet's harmony with earth in the charming set of lyrics and sonnets called "Rhymes Left In An Orchard". This nearness of earth to him gives consolation, lends strength and courage. Witness this sonnet:

Solitary Night

I shut the door upon the Autumn night
Where field and road are fading in the dark,
And a slow rain has come, so thin and light
I scarce would know, except that I can mark,
Through the lost stillness of these lonely walls
A delicate disturbance in the tree,
And this profounder stillness, now, that falls
Around the listening house that shelters me.
And I am less alone when I can keep
This intimate sense of patient fields in rain
Smelling through darkness as I fall asleep,
Thinking how many nights they must have lain
With no one watching near whose heart had known
A desolate darkness very like their own.

One gets the very keenest impressions of turning seasons in these poems made possible by the poet's ability to appeal to more than just the sense of sight. Always there is the sound of many changes in earth and sky. Always the odors of Autumn, the chill of Winter, the gentle freshness of Spring. Perforce there is too, a definite motion running through the book, subordinated by the individual motions of the things of earth. The poet is aware of the movements of the stars in relation to these things of earth. One of the most beautiful sonnets I have ever real is Mr. Morton's lyric description of a river.

River Traffic

This twilight river, flowing in pale lands,
Will bear this freight of amber-tinted light
To outer countries and dim, stirless strands
Beyond the starry edges of the night—
And leave one watcher standing on this shore,
Lost in old dreams of rivers and their way
Of flowing where their names are heard no more
By men who knew them in the light of day.
And this familiar stream is changed forever,
And I, myself, am nevermore the same.
Since I have watched the traffic of the river
Bearing away, to countries of no name,
The last of evening on an amber barque,
Trailed by slow stars across the coming dark.

Once Mr. Morton became quite Fortian in his mood and very whimsically wrote the sonnet, "Conversation With a Hill at Winter's End". So far as I feel right now, that is the only piece which smacks of the Great Ordinary Yankee.

At the beginning of the Autumn tone in the volume is one of the loveliest pictures of dog and man that has been written in verse. Composed with true poetic restraint, this sonnet is a masterpiece of one of the most ordinary, yet best-loved incidents of life.

The Hound

The sleepy hound is dozing on the hearth,
And lifts a solemn eye, from time to time,
To the one thing he loves upon the earth,
Who sits here puzzling through a rhyme,
Wondering if that long head between the paws
Ponders no whit of seasons and their ends:
The Autumn darkening and the lonely caws
Of birds gone south, and what it all portends.
Again, the sleepy eye...So, all is well?
But what, my friend, of that too sudden gust
Whose roaring in the woods was like a bell
Of grievous doom for all frail shapes of dust..
And you...and I?...and so, my musing goes
The thing he loves sits here: that's all he knows

Certainly this book is an unusual collection of poetry. In mose cases of contemporary publication of verse, the poems included are of great variety in structure tone and mood all applied to most any subject imaginable. And while, I believe, it is the function of the poet to interpret all life, it surely is somewhat of a relief to find a poet holding to one theme at a time, not trying to cover the multitudinous phases of all experience in the space of a single volume of separate poems. It would seem the poetic horizon is brightening, with books of such definite character as "High Mowing", "All My Youth" and now, "Earth's Processional".

"Decimal—A Modicum of Verse", a very small new quarterly, edited by Ada Borden Stevens of Newport, Rhode Island, has just come to my attention. Only a ten-page pamphlet, it contains a few very charming poems and indicates promises of a future as one of the poetry magazines of distinction. One small poem of especially beautiful imagery, I should like to quote:

VOYAGERS

Three birds cannot fly abreast.
And as I live I've seen
And know
Even friends can only rest—
Or go
With spaces in between.
—Mary Cummings Eudy.

SUBSCRIBERS SHOULD NOTIFY AS TO CHANGE OF THEIR ADDRESS

For mutual advantage, we urge subscribers, to the Advertiser, to notify us promptly of any change of address. Neglect to do so often results in the failure of the paper to reach the subscriber and also causes inconvenience and expense.

When you are to move to a new town or, if in a city, to a new street or locality, write us of that fact as soon as the new address is known to you.

The very first copy that goes to old address, after you have left, is the one that creates the expenses. So please tell us in time so that we may make the change and send no papers after you have departed. A postal will do very well for this brief, but important, message.

We will be appreciative of the courtesy and can give you better service.

Eighty-five Year Old Advertiser

Farmers of 1847 Had Good Market for Produce

W. S. Sloan, of Norway and Albany, lends us a copy of the Norway Advertiser, issued Friday morning, February 26, 1847. The paper at that time was a four page affair, 20x14, 1-2 inches in size, with five columns to a page. E. Plummer was the publisher and the subscription price was one dollar per year.

This issue of the Advertiser contained no local news whatever. The first page consisted of fiction, a poem and a few quotations. On the second page is an article about the causes and antidote of consumption. The Irish famine and news of relief being raised in this country are given considerable space. It was stated that the entire available British navy would be used to transport food from all parts of the globe to Ireland and Scotland. News of Congress and the Mexican War are also on this page. Among the shorter items is the following, "Our illness during the present week will be a sufficient apology for the delay in this issue of our paper." An "Education Meeting" in South Paris and another in Buckfield were reported, as were fires at Gray Corner, West Gardner and Brimfield, Mass. Other items mention the election of a new president of the St. Lawrence and Atlantic Railroad Corporation (now part of the Grand Trunk-Canadian National system) and a New Jersey suicide.

On page three appear a number of general items, taken chiefly from other papers. One item mentions the high cost of rent in the "new town of Lawrence, Mass.", now a city of over 85,000 people. Other items mention an increase in the price of flour in England, a Kentucky murder and more about the Irish famine. Vital statistics reported a marriage at North Yarmouth and the deaths of a Livermore man and a Portland man.

From the advertisments on this page, we earn that Brown & Co., had opened a new store at the Falls and carried a stock of groceries, dry goods, hardware, paints, bar iron and steel, etc. A. C. Denison offered patent medicine, leather, lime, plaster and salt. E. C. Shackley, who had opened a store at the head of Main Street, advertised provisions, whale and other oils, hard and hollow ware (hardware), dry goods, boots, shoes and leather. Peter B. Frost, tailor, offered prices "cheap as the cheapest," while William Hayes, proprietor of "Temperance Tavern," stated that his hotel was now being run upon "strictly Teetotal Principles," and hoped that the travelling community would not find the absence of "ardent spirits" disagreeable. Norway Liberal Institute, which preceded Norway High School, was to open for its first term on March tenth and advertised tuition as follows:

Common English	$3.00
Higher English	4.00
Languages	4.00
Music, piano and guitar (extra)	5.00
Penmanship	$1.00

Board for gentlemen was advertised as $1.25 to $1.50 per week and that for ladies at from $1.00 to $1.25 per week.

Among the other advertisements appear those of a Portland drug store and another in Boston, a farm in Windham and another in Waterford, and two legal notices. The selectmen of Waterford issued a pauper's notice, similar to the popular wife notice of today. Jeremiah Howe of Norway advertised carpeting and feathers and the Farmers' Head Quarters of Harrison offered a line of general merchandise, as did Robert A. Chapman & Co., of Bethel Hill. A. Grover, also of Bethel Hill, offered dry goods, groceries, salt, plaster, iron, steel, etc. One of Brown & Co's advertisements is written as a poem.

The farmers of that time enjoyed a much better market for their produce than those of today. Not only did the merchants offer to take produce in trade but nearly all of them advertised to pay cash as well. From those advertisements which state the quantity of produce wanted, we learn that the farmers of this vicinity had a ready market for the following:

Clover Seed	70 tons
Dried Apple	40 tons
Oats	10,000 bushels
Beans	4,000 bushels
Herds grass seed	2,000 bushels
Corn	1,000 bushels
Rye	1,000 bushels

Other advertisements request the same line but do not state the quantity wanted. House ashes were also in demand at the time.

On page four appear a farm column and a few jokes and general items. The last three columns consist of patent medicine advertisements, the card of a Bethel lawyer and a small advertisement offering book and job printing by the Advertiser Office.

The copy at hand is still in excellent condition and may be read with ease. The name "A. Sloan," father of W. S. Sloan, appears in faded ink in the upper margin of the first page.

HELPS IN COOKING

Cooked rice has a good many uses besides being served for dinner in place of potato or as a breakfast cereal. Put it in soups; combine it with baked and stewed dishes; use it in waffles, spoon bread, muffins, cookies, and even in sponge cake; use it in salads, make it into desserts, such as farmers' pudding or custard rice pudding, or rice with stewed fruits or preserves.

Fruit, nut, and other quick loaf breads are made from a mixture like that for muffins, only slightly thicker in some cases. If the batter is comparatively thin, the fruit or nuts should be floured before being added. The temperature of the oven should be low enough for the bread to bake through without making the crust too hard or brown. For a small loaf a temperature of about 375 degrees F. is about right; for a large loaf it should be lower. Test with a straw or toothpick.

To make hard sauce a little different, use brown sugar instead of white, and grate in the rind of an orange for flavoring. Hard sauce is good with almost any hot steamed pudding.

To keep a fruit cake in good condition, wrap it in waxed or parchment paper after it is entirely cold, and place it in a tight container. Some people like to put in with the cake an apple cut in half or a piece of cheesecloth saturated with cider. Look at the cake from time to time to see that no mold is appearing.

State House News

(By Charles J. Oberly)

Game wardens in the service of the State of Maine are warned to beware of the sportsman who is "liberal with the bottle" in a recent communication from George J. Stobie, Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Game. Mr. Stobie's letter to his wardens is a three-page 3,000 word statement outlining his ideas of what constitutes an "ideal" warden. It is, in many ways, a remarkable document which, it is believed, will later be issued in printed pamphlet form.

Warning against "the type of men who think they cannot have a good time in the woods without bringing intoxicating liquor with them" Mr. Stobie admonishes his wardens never to accept an invitation to drink.

"The true warden is loyal to his State and its laws and this loyalty should govern his conduct with all classes of men," the letter says. "He will win respect for himself more often than he will create displeasure by acting the part of an ideal citizen."

Although Mr. Stobie tells his wardens to be patient and courteous with "truculent and fault finding" sportsmen, he asserts that the warden is a State officer and "should not truckle or permit himself to be demeaned or walked on."

The warden, he states, should regard himself as a stockholder with an interest in the fish and game business beyond that of a hired man and his first duty is to enforce the laws without fear or favor, but also to use discretion and judgment.

"The poacher is not only a wilful breaker of the law, but he is an enemy of the people and it sometimes happens that he is, through his own lack of ability to see straight, an enemy to himself," Mr. Stobie says. He advises his wardens to attempt to "convert" a poacher by reasoning with him and to convince him he should sell his services as a guide "In an honorable and lawful manner" than to "skulk and sneak around in an effort to beat the law." Accidental violators of the fish and game laws should be kindly and courteously admonished, the Commissioner advises.

The present Autumn is the "wettest" in many years in the State of Maine, Forestry Commissioner Neil Violette asserts. The term "wettest" has nothing to do with prohibition or the trend of the recent election, but refers solely to the rainfall which has been almost unprecedented. Last Spring was one of the driest seasons on record and the Forest Commissioner spent nearly $50,000 fighting forest fires throughout the state.

May and June and part of July were an anxious period for the guardians of Maine's forests and during [illegible] a pall of smoke hung over [illegible] of the northern woods as [illegible] blazed fiercely in the tinder-dry [illegible] land.

Since mid-July, however, the [illegible] gods have been kind to Maine [illegible] has fallen in great abundance. [illegible] ent, Mr. Violette says, it is almost impossible to start a fire in the woods. Lakes and streams are almost at flood height and the forest floor is heavy [illegible] in water in some places.

As a result, the Department is able to conserve its funds at this time and [illegible] plan a State-wide advertising and educational campaign for next spring when conditions may be utterly different and the influx of early fishermen has begun.

Some drastic changes in the method of apportioning State funds for highway purposes are predicted when the next legislature gets under way in January. Due to the State's serious financial condition, it is felt by Republicans and Democrats alike that some new method must be worked out with highway money, even if some sections of the State suffer as a result. A bold suggestion has been made calling for the withdrawal of all direct tax money for highway purposes which would save the State a little more than $1,000,000.

It is apparent that something will be done regarding the present methods of apportioning State Aid money to the various municipalities. The present system is so involved that probably no single person in the State thoroughly understands it with the exception of a few State Highway Department officials. There are the Five Towns Act and the Times Act or vice versa and several other acts which have to be explained with diagrams. The concensus seems to be that the towns are getting too much State money to fix up their roads, at least in times like these, and that they will in the future have to dig down in their own pockets for some of that money.

The State has some bond money and Federal Aid to play around with but that is going into main trunk lines and is already as good as spent. A new concrete stretch of 10 miles between Winthrop and Augusta is expected to eat up around a half million dollars.

If readers of this column want a new, fascinating game equal at least to the most intricate crossword puzzle let them try and find the geographical center of the State of Maine. We'll give you one hint—it's somewhere in the vicinity of Dover-Foxcroft.

Two pieces of legislation, which a few years ago would have been considered rank socialism, will come up for serious consideration by the next Maine legislature. They are Old Age Pensions and Unemployment Insurance. Both measures were introduced at the last legislative session two years ago and both were summarily defeated. But the depression had not made itself felt in Maine at that time and this year a determined effort will be made to have the State take care of its unfortunate citizens who are suffering desperately through no fault of their own.

Two years ago the House of Representatives went on record as favoring Old Age Pensions but it also went on record against any action at that time because there were no available funds to set up an Old Age Pension Commission. The session was somewhat tearful and highly dramatic as speaker after speaker arose and delivered a eulogy to the aged mothers and fathers. Everybody said they favored a pension system for the aged, but, they added sadly, "What are we going to use for money?"

Unemployment Insurance didn't fare so well. In the first place there wasn't as much unemployment in Maine during the early winter of 1931 as there will be during the early winter of 1933 and there wasn't the agitation for such legislation as there undoubtedly will be.

But, on the other hand, the State has far less money than it had two years ago and the question naturally arises that if it couldn't afford to pass that sort of paternalistic legislation in 1931, how can it be done in 1933.

Forest Commissioner Neil Violette is experimenting with a portable radio set which he plans to use in reporting forest fires throughout the Forestry District of more than 15,000,000 acres. The set has been designed by government experts and has had a successful try-out in the mountains of the west by forest rangers. It weighs only 10 pounds and may be set up in 18 minutes. Carried on a fire warden's back, it can be taken into the dense woods where telephone lines do not penetrate and messages may be sent back to the watch towers or district headquarters if they are located within a radius of 10 miles from the sender. Larger types of portable radios which weigh 35 lbs.

Larger types of portable radios which weigh 35 lbs. are to be set up in the towers, according to present plans. In fighting forest fires, Commissioner Violette says, the most important feature is to get quick and accurate knowledge of the exact location of the blaze and the portable radio set seems to supply an agency which will do just that.

No less than eight State officials will come up for reappointment during the next two years, or during the term of office of Louis J. Brann, Maine's newly elected Democratic governor. As virtually all of them are Republicans there is considerable speculation in the State House as to their ultimate fate. It is taken for granted that Governor Brann will certainly endeavor to reward members of his own party for their loyalty to him during the campaign. That is the normal and expected thing. If he appoints Democrats to fill vacancies as they come up, a lot of present Republican office-holders are going to find themselves on the outside looking in. That, of course, is predicted upon the supposition that the Executive Council will confirm with the governor's appointments.

According to the records in Governor Gardiner's office, the men whose terms expire during 1933 and 1934 are Sanger Annis, Bank Commissioner; Henry E. Dunnack, State Librarian; Charles O. Beals, Commissioner of Labor; John W. Healy, Supt. of Buildings; Willis E. Swift, and Frank A. Peabody, Highway Commissioners; Albert Greenlaw, Public Utilities Commissioner, and Granville C. Gray, Industrial Accident Commissioner. Many appointees to new offices created under the Administrative Code serve "at the pleasure" of the Governor and Council and what that "pleasure" may be no man knows at the present writing.

A new heating plant which cost the State a good many thousands of dollars has just been installed in the State House and is the marvel of the age to visitors who are allowed to inspect its intricacies. Its chief feature is a huge board covered with red and green lights and resembling a telephone switchboard. This is set up in the basement of the building and records the temperature in each and every room throughout the huge edifice. Simply by pushing a button the man in charge of the board can step up the heat in any room or reduce it, according to the temperature indicated by the different colored lights. Funds for the installation were voted at the last legislative session and the incoming legislature will at least be warmly and comfortably housed during the stormy session in the offing.

TIME BUDGET IN HOME GIVES MORE LEISURE

Omitting the daily dusting of the legs of chairs or the top of the piano is no crime, even though most people are sensitive to the beauties of order and cleanliness. The old fashioned and hopeless proverb "Man's work is from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done" can now be replaced by the twentieth century challenge, "Manage time or time will manage you," believes Edna M. Cobb, home management specialist, University of Maine, who suggests a time budget. She says: "Scheduling and dispatching work are the twins used in getting the housework done so there is a little time left over for the enrichment of family life. Some housewives are good at making schedules, but can't seem to make them work; others are so busy dispatching work as the tasks come along one after another that the day is spent in confusion, and night brings only weariness and the promise of another day just like the one before.

"Before making out a time schedule, however, it is well to weigh values, consider what are the most important things to be done each day, if some of the non-essentials may be lessened, or eliminated

"Then one must know how long it takes to do each task. The only way to find out is to keep a time record for a few days. If one did no more than that, it would be quite illuminating to know how many unnecessary minutes are sometimes spent on one task because of the wrong kind of arrangement of equipment, the wrong time of the day or week, when the task is customarily performed, the lack of delegating tasks that other members of the family can do as well or better than mother herself.

"Making the time schedule or the time budget consists of the following:

1. List the important things to be done, with the time each will take.
2. Arrange in order.
3. Allow time for interruption, some are sure to come and are unavoidable, others may be avoided by careful planning.
4. If there are no interruptions, time can be used for less important work.
5. Plan time for rest and play and use it as planned.
6. Make the program workable, but flexible."

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Walter Sanborn: "The saxaphone player is probably at his utmost worst over the radio, but no one has to listen, which helps not at all in dealing with the pest next door."

On page 3 of this week's paper is a community ad, showing where the Thanksgiving day specials are on sale. Read the ad, you will find something there for your Thanksgiving dinner.

Recount of votes has cost some $4,400. One democrat was dropped from a minor office by 3 votes and a tie broken in favor of a republican. Good work, but a little expensive!

W. R. French, game warden, living at North Lovell, recently received a surprise visit from a relative of Bloomfield, N. J. His name is Donald Sears French, and came all the way in a car bringing along with him a friend, Orrin MacMurray, who is the champion non-professional horseshoe pitcher of all New England and some portions of Canada.

Thos. E. Halkett of Bridgton was a recent caller. He sells the products of the Mt. Zircon Spring Water Co., of Rumford. Many years ago the history of the Halkett family was published in this paper and he is interested in looking it up. It was written by Dr. J. C. Gallison of Pittsfield. The late F. Q. Elliott of clothing fame of this town was an uncle of Mr. Halkett.

Stanley I. Perham of West Paris called Tuesday afternoon and showed us a piece of flint, which Walter Inman of West Paris had given him. This was found near Trap Corner. It is a fine piece of flint and shaped like an Indian scraper and is 5x2 and curving. Mr. Perham is showing the find in his store window at West Paris. It is known that Indians lived in the vicinity of Trap Corner and Molly Ockett, the famous Indian, is said to have frequented this territory.

Algernon H. Smith of Spurr's Corner, Otisfield, was a recent caller. At one time he worked for B. F. Spinney & Co. of Norway. It was when T. E. Woodley was superintendent and some forty-five years ago. He worked in several departments, longer in the cutting room, directed by Sam K. Knowland. Mr. Smith married a daughter of Mr. Foster who had charge of S. D. Andrews' pants factory. His daughter, Mrs. Jason P. Little is our correspondent from that section.

Ralph M. Bacon, 87 St. Stephen St., Back Bay, Boston, formerly of Woodstock, Me., writes:

"It was with the deepest regret that I noticed the article by F. E. Mitchell of Alton, N. H., which was given such prominence in your paper.

"Americans may differ as to measures and policies, but there can be no difference in opinion among true Americans that the office of President of the United States should be respected.

"To imply, even indirectly, that Pres. Hoover is not an American, to hold up in the spirit of ridicule the man in the White House who has borne such crushing burdens, is an implication that thousands who voted for Gov. Roosevelt would not approve.

"In the midst of a storm than engulfed the world Pres. Hoover has given all that was within him to lessen human suffering. He has labored almost unceasingly night and day to check the destructive forces that were attempting to break down the very foundations of our government. That Pres. Hoover is an American of the very highest type is an established fact and no implications to the contrary can alter the truth of that statement."

LOCAL HORSE STORY PROMISE

J. W. Thompson of Canton, ex-editor of Maine Horse Breeders' Journal, and one who for a third of a century knew more of horses than any other person in the State, writes:

"Your letter came so long ago that I am almost ashamed to answer it, but I have made two or three attempts to do so, and accompany it with an article on "The Horse in History, Both Sacred and Profane—in Poetry and Romance." Not the history of the horse, for he has a literature of his own. Volumes almost without number have been written recording his achievements since Joseph sold corn to his brethren at the time of the famine in Israel for horses and other chattels.

"Both in war and peace, as well as sports, he has been the servant and friend of man, but putting aside for the moment ancient history and coming down to more modern days, there was Nelson, the gray war horse of Washington, that followed the latter to his grave; the horses of Napoleon and Wellington; Traveller, the horse that Gen. Lee, broken hearted, rode away from Appomattox, after the surrender; the Old Sorrel of Stonewall Jackson; Rienzi, the 'steed as black as night' that bore Sheridan from Winchester, 'twenty miles away.'

"But I'll get to preaching, if I keep on. Some day, if the 'spirit moves,' I'll write something for your paper. I was exceedingly sorry not to have seen you when you called last, but I happened to be away for the day."

We hope "the spirit moves" and our readers and his friends can read his story of the local horse of a quarter of a century back. Send it in, John, and don't forget to eal when this way.

Don Seitz, New York writes: "The enclosed clipping from the Evening Post of Saturday will indicate what Elva Dorr and her lady friend have gone up against. Also the Gibson clipping: Harvey is son of Jim Gibson, long P. and O. station agent at North Conway and cousin of the Norway-California Gibsons. I have never met him here, but recall him as a pink-faced infant snoozing in a baby carriage at North Conway, which roosted on our piazza while his young aunt was inside, sewing for Mother. Some rise from that to be a J. P. Morgan favorite and ride with the hounds. How some apples swim.

Very calm after the election and no excitement about it: general feeling good. The country has shown that it can have a revolution and feel stronger in consequence. Business is admittedly better. Invested money is in for a long sweat: it will take time to build values up again. They were mostly fictitious. People are grasping at straws, when it is hay that is needed. It is going to be a difficult task to get rid of prohibition not so much in repealing as to secure a substitute: the liquor industry cannot thrive without the saloon and I doubt if this will be allowed to come back. Besides, many folks have learned how to make their own and are likely to continue the practice. Missouri whiskey has actually been improved. Without convenient selling facilities, it is going to be hard for the industry to rehabilitate itself. Then, too, it will be heavily taxed.

In Finland, where prohibition had an eleven year trial, the come-back had been disappointing financially under state control. I think the howl for beer is mostly press agent.

Sent in: Now that election is over, let's turn our mind and thoughts to other things, "Safety First". Remember, booze and automobile driving do not go well together.

Next week will the correspondents to the Advertiser, and any who have items or ads for the next edition, please send them in early in the week as we print the Advertiser on Wednesday instead of Thursday afternoon.

Don C. Seitz: "I hope things will wake up now, and believe they will. No excuse longer for loafing. They—the people—were not scared by Hoover's nonsense and ought to cease being afraid of themselves and each other."

Now look at Maine. The Pine Tree State led the country into Tuesday's landslide by going Democratic in September, and then doublecrossed her sister commonwealths by reversing herself in the national election. Is that logic, we ask you?

RUMINATIONS OF OLD BILL

Well, the Democrats are in power and I suppose thousands of people who voted for Roosevelt think that all they have to do now is to hold a dish out of the window and have it rained full of twenty dollar gold pieces. Well, if the Democrats keep half of their promises they ought to keep in power a long time, but just at present I feel like the nigger that preached the funeral sermon. The dear departed had not let a very exemplary life and the parson said as he looked down on the casket, "Bre'er Rastus we hopes you has gone where we specs you ain't." I hope for the best, but I specs it ain't.

Roosevelt says he is going to put everyone to work. Well, that brings to my mind another story, An old farmer was boarding two college students and one morning at breakfast these students were talking how they were going to invent an acid that would go through anything it touched; the old farmer listened for a while then he said, "Boys what are ye goin' ter put it in?" Now if Roosevelt puts everyone to work what is he going to do with the product. There is a surplus of most everything now, so I want to know "What is he going to put it in?"

I should think from the tree I am sitting in that these young yellows that are going around in an old car had better spend their time raising a pair of steers and they wont be in half the danger cutting hay for them that they would be cranking that old bus.

And I think these girls that ride with them smoking cigarettes would be better off making patchwork. It seems to me that a good patch-work comforter would be more comfortable to crawl under some cold night than a package of cigarettes and it won't stink so bad if it gets afire. The boy with his steers can keep the beef peddlers from soaking us seventy-five cents for a pound of tripe, even if cattle are not selling as they did in war times.

But just as sure as you will find little apples in the bottom of the barrel, automobiles, gas and oil and too much night riding is the cause of more than half of these hard times.—Old Bill of Stow, William M. Sanborn.

FOODS CHILDREN NEED

By Betty Barclay

There are certain foods that our children need. There are also certain foods that our children like. When these foods are similar, we have much cause for rejoicing. When they differ, there is real cause for alarm.

Grown-ups change their diet at the command of the family physician, and in most cases start to cure prevailing ills almost immediately. With children, complications arise. The child who does not like milk, quite often refuses to drink milk. The child who does not care for green vegetables, persists in leaving untouched, those green vegetables that are placed before him. As the child, in many homes, is the real ruler, the country is today filled with mothers and fathers who realize their children are not getting the foods they need, but seem practically powerless to remedy the evil.

Whether we like the idea or not, our children must have certain things in their diet. They must secure carbohydrates. They must have protein foods. They must get fats, minerals, salts and vitamins.

And they must have a certain amount of roughage if they are to be free from constipation and its kindred ills. Constipation is serious enough in an adult, but the constipated child is prone to develop into the adult who suffers with chronic constipation—if the child develops into an adult at all.

The roughage of vegetables usually suffices to keep constipation away—provided one eats liberal quantities of vegetables. Where this is not done, and the woman who serves the meals does not know what to supply to take the place of this vegetable roughage, trouble is in the offing.

Liberal quantities of fruits and whole cereals will furnish this roughage. The fortunate children of farmers with immense orchards may nibble apples, peaches and other fruits, day after day, and secure the roughage they refuse to take from spinach and lettuce. Other children seldom secure enough fruit to answer the purpose and their parents must look elsewhere for roughage.

This may be secured from rice flakes which contain vegetable cellulose or have this "vegetable effect"—and it may be obtained whether the cereal is eaten as a cereal at breakfast, or whether it comes in the form of a muffin, macaroon or tasteful pudding later in the day.

Fortunately, most children like their morning dish of cereal, particularly where it is served with fruit. But those who even refuse their cereal will not refuse a pudding. Dessert to children is the same as a box of candy to a sweet girl graduate or a new set of matched irons to a golfer.

Here, then, are two suggestions for puddings that will supply roughage. Both are filled with foods that children need, and if the rice flakes used are those that have a "vegetable effect", roughage has been accounted for also:

Date Fluff

3 eggs
1 cup rice flakes, crushed
1 cup sugar
½ cup nuts, chopped
1 cup dates, chopped

Beat egg yolk and add to dry ingredients, which have been thoroughly mixed. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degree F.) 45 minutes. Crumble and pile in sherbet glasses. Serve with whipped cream or lemon sauce—serve hot or cold. This recipe will be sufficient for six.

Delicious Custard Pudding

2 eggs
½ cupful raisins
½ cupful sugar
½ teaspoonful vanilla
2 cupfuls rice flakes
2 cupfuls milk
Grating of nutmeg (if desired)

Beat eggs well and add rice flakes and raisins. Mix sugar with milk and add to the egg and rice flakes mixture. Add vanilla and nutmeg if desired. Pour into a greased baking dish, place dish in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven until custard is firm. Serve very cold.

Gorham Normal News

By Doris P. Marr

The third annual Superintendents-Principals day at the normal school took place on Wednesday, Nov. 9th. At this occasion over thirty superintendents and principals from various parts of Maine were present. The purpose of this day is to acquaint the guests with the work that is being done by the students at the school. The morning was devoted to visiting classes—the classes in Corthell hall, the junior high school, and the Manual Training Shop being those of greatest interest. At noon the guests were entertained in East Hall dining room by their former students. Following the noon hour an assembly program was held in Russell Hall. At this time Superintendent Fred W. Burrill of Augusta spoke on "What Can a Normal School do to Better Prepare its Students to Teach in the State of Maine".

A dramatization, written by members of the Journalism Class, under the supervision of its instructor, Miss Jeannette S. Johnson, was the second feature of the program. This dramatization was written with the aim of giving the superintendents and principals a little clearer idea of what Gorham Normal school has to offer in the line of outside activities. It was entitled, "The Green and White Revue", the "green and white" being the school year book. A large book, representing this annual, formed the background of the stage, out of which stepped the various characters as they were mentioned. Some of the organizations to be represented in this dramatization were, the Boys' Quartet, Art Club, Orchestra, "The Oracle", Dramatic Club, Campfire Girls, Y. W. C. A., Girls' Athletics, Boys' Athletics and the Girls' Glee Club.

Following the assembly the guests were given the opportunity of meeting their former students in conference, after which they met with Dr. Russell and his faculty for a round table conference and tea. Mrs. Adel Lombard, Casco, was among the guests present.

On Saturday evening in Russell Hall, one of the most enjoyable social events of the season was held under the supervision of the house committee, this being in the form of a Hallowe'en party. The very picturesque and Hallwe'eny looking decorations, added to the variety and weirdness of the costumes made a most effective setting. A short entertainment, consisting of music and Hallowe'en customs, was presented, followed by the serving of refreshments, doughnuts and sweet cider. Dancing, the music for which being provided by the Fellas Orchestra, completed the evening's program.

Among those to report for basket ball this year are Lawrence Bartlett, Paul Chapman, Bethel, and Daniel Wight, No. Newry.

Daniel Wight, North Newry, was one of the members of the mid-senior basket ball team which played the advanced seniors on Wednesday afternoon, winning by a score of 28-22.

An announcement was made in chapel one morning, recently to the effect that the year book, "The Green and White", was once again given first grade rating by the Scholastic Press Association.

Dean Nellie W. Jordan entertained the members of the Cosmopolitan Club in East Hall reception room one afternoon during the past week. Interesting talks on travels were given by various members. Tea was poured. Those assisting Miss Jordan were Miss Ruth Jackins and Miss Margaret McDonald, members of the house committee.

The regular meeting of the Campfire Girls was held on Monday evening. Following the business meeting, instructions in stretcher making were given by the guardian, Miss Sarah Reed. Miss Kathryn Groezinger, Norway, was present at this meeting.

A meeting of the Oxford County Club was held on Monday evening with Miss Margaret Dow presiding. Plans for a dance to take place on Dec. 10th were made, and a program for each meeting was arranged under the leadership of Miss Rita Linnell, Oxford. Those attending were the Misses Betty Huntoon, Bernice Ladd, Avis Hinds, Janet Caliendo, Barbara Howard, Myrtle Pratt, Rumford, Winola Kilgore, South Waterford, Annie Gardiner, North Waterford, Rita Linnell, Oxford, Dorothy Packard, Canton and Lawrence Bartlett, Bethel.

Miss Betty Huntoon, Rumford, served as an usher on Superintendent-Principal's day.

In observance of Education Week, a session of the junior high school was held on Wednesday evening from 7 to 8:30. Regular classes were held with a special music assembly, consisting of numbers by the orchestra, harmonica band and glee club under the direction of Miss Miriam Andrews, instructor of music.

Among those taking part in the dramatization, "The Green and White Revue", were Daniel Wight, Newry; Avis Hinds, Rumford, Margaret Dow, Bernice Ladd, also of Rumford.

Miss Doris P. Marr spent the past holiday with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Marr at North Bridgton.

The following students spent the Armistice holiday at home: the Misses Phyllis Marshall, Ruth Pitts, Naples; Rita Linnell, Oxford; Celia Richardson, Denmark; Kathryn Groezinger, Norway; Winola Kilgore, North Waterford; Mary Colby, Winona Oliver, South Paris; Beatrice Farwell, New Gloucester; Dorothy Packard, Canton; Cora Dyer, Dorothy Ingalls, Wilma Wyman, Eva Hall, Joanna Stone, Eleanor Hebb, Bridgton; Margaret Dow, Bernice Ladd, Avis Hinds, Betty Huntoon, Rumford; and Paul Chapman and Lawrence Bartlett, Bethel.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week

Mrs. Betty Luedeke of Dayton writes: "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight —I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast, go lighter on fatty meats, potatoes, butter, cream and pastries—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Get it at L. V. Ashton's—or any drug store in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lost fat—money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

Reports in Sewing Projects Sponsored by the 4-H Clubs of Oxford County

Nearly 257 girls of Oxford County were enrolled in the sewing project sponsored by the 4-H clubs of the county last year, according to a report made by Miss Gilberta Watters, Wednesday. During the year, just past, 220 girls made 1557 articles and completed about 1762 hours of mending.

This is all the more remarkable since the 4-H leaders do not encourage the members to do fancy work, but rather stress the making of garments and [illegible] ing of clothing.

A 4-H Achievement

"Old man Depression took the count of ten last year from the five boys who kept laying hens at the Connecticut Agricultural College to help defray expenses," writes Edward S. Walford, Connecticut assistant extension poultryman. "The verdict in favor of the five boys who started with 465 laying birds was a return over expenses of $[illegible] from Sept. 15, 1931, to May 31, 1932, or an average profit of $1.15 per bird."

Within the last few years there have been some noticeable evidences of how former 4-H members have helped to pay their way through college.

"Any boy or girl with a determination and will to do can make a success at poultry raising," Mr. Walford declares. "It requires some hard work and attention to small details, but it is work that is pleasant and profitable for those who will stick to it."

Local leaders are asked to encourage their club members to retain their bank deposits given them at county contest.

Bankers Insure Future Through 4-H Dairy Club Work

"Marion County, Indiana, bankers are keeping pay premiums on prosperity insurance for the future of the county by their assistance in developing a dairy program which not only builds the soils on the farms of the county, but is one of the greatest character building projects that could be undertaken."

Conserve Six-Year Molars

There are four teeth, known as the six-year molars, so anxious to take their permanent places that they come quietly into line about the fifth or sixth year of the child's life. Unlike all the other mature teeth, according to Dr. J. C. Hollister, chief of the dental section of the Pennsylvania Health Department, they are not preceded by temporary teeth, but drop into an hitherto unfilled position to stay; but only if they get the care and attention they deserve.

The fact that they arrive on the scene while the first teeth are still in place has created an attitude of indifference on the part of many parents. They mistakenly conclude that these teeth will be supplanted later by others; hence, they attach little, if any, importance to them.

Largely because of their comparatively inaccessible position, they are not kept clean, and therefore, are especially liable to decay.

The 1933 Kitchen Improvement contest was given a hearty welcome last Wednesday, when seventy men and women met at the Bethel Grange Hall. This contest, in which the Maine Federation of Farm Bureaus is awarding four prizes, is open to every home-maker in this county except those living right in the city of Rumford. Contestants need not be members of the Oxford County Farm Bureau. Each contestant must enroll in writing. Her kitchen will be scored "before and after". The score card is a standard one published by the Maine Extension Service, and the home demonstration agent will do all the scoring. The final awards will be based on the greatest improvement for the least expenditure of money. The use of materials on hand and the labor of the man of the house will all help the score.

Speakers at the meeting were: Mrs. Leslie Millett of Norway, who described the kitchen she has just made over; Miss Edna Cobb, Home Management Specialist of Orono; Clesson Turner, Agricultural Engineer, and Oxford County's two Exension Agents.

FLAT POCKETBOOKS AFFECT THANKSGIVING DINNERS

Thin pocketbooks oblige homemakers to pause even with plans for the traditional Thanksgiving dinner. Yet with a little cleverness it is possible to substitute something else in place of the turkey that will delight the family. It is suggested that the thinner the pocketbook, more care is necessary in cooking and serving.

It takes a rather big turkey to make an economical purchase, and it would mean a considerabe outlay in cash for the small family with a small pocketbook. A meal planned around a pork roast is good. The "Crown" makes a pretty dish, but a pork shoulder or fresh ham can be dressed up, too. Either of them may be boned and stuffed, and for Thanksgiving the stuffing and gravy are as important as the roast itself. A light bread stuffing is always good. Wih a plain dressing, a garnish of fried sliced apples or halves of apples cooked in cinnamon sugar syrup is inexpensive, yet dressy. Cranberries may be served, if preferred, for after all, what is a Thanksgiving dinner without cranberries. The gravy should be carefully made; measure the fat left in

Cranberries may be served, if preferred, for after all, what is a Thanksgiving dinner without cranberries. The gravy should be carefully made; measure the fat left in the roasting pan, add one tablespoon flour to each tablespoon fat, cook thoroughly, add boiling water until of the desired consistency, stirring constanty to prevent lumping. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

For an inexpensive first course, try cream of corn soup made with canned corn topped with popped corn kernels, a dash of paprika. Perhaps you would like to start with tomato juice cocktail. The vegetables in this Thanksgiving dinner are mashed potatoes and diced yellow turnips. If preferred, you can use potatoes and carrots, or sweet potatoes and boiled onions. The quality and attractiveness of all vegetables depend very largely on proper cooking.

Follow the main course wih a light salad preferably something tart or just plain lettuce with French dressing. Then top off with pumpkin or squash pie, that favorite dessert of the season.

Right here in Oxford County we find this situation: apples, potatoes, milk and other farm produce being thrown away, or left in the fields to rot, and within a few miles women and children going hungry because they have no money to buy.

The Red Cross has been designated by Congress as the agency best able to remedy the situation. It is the Red Cross which is entrusted with the giving away of hundreds of tons of flour, ground from Federal Farm Board wheat, and cloth from Government cotton. Here in Maine, the Extension Service, the Red Cross and local Farm Bureaus hope to carry the idea still farther. Farmers who have more potatoes, more apples, or more of any food than they can sell and use, are asked to get in touch with the local Red Cross to see if there isn't some one in need of those farm products.

Farmers living near Oxford who have a surplus of any garden produce are asked to get in touch with the local Red Cross representatives: Mrs. Kate Stanford, Mrs. Ida Stone, or George L. Wilder. These three people have been appointed to receive donations of farm produce and give it to people who are in need. They have designated the Library as their food depot, and the time when it will be open for donations is Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Extension Service is cooperating with the Red Cross and the Farm Bureau to make this a worthwhile project.

The Canton Farm Bureau have appointed Mrs. Aimee Chamberlain to cooperate with the Red Cross in distributing surplus farm produce to the needy. In Canton, the community hall will be open Saturday morning between ten and twelve to receive donations. The Red Cross Committee in charge is: C. D. Quint, F. L. Briggs and John Briggs.

Dixfield has secured the assistance of Chas. H. Towle and E. L. Stetson. Farm produce may be left at the Towle Hardware Company, Dixfield, any day during business hours.

A program of work was drawn up for the year and passed into the county club agent at that time. This is the first club to send in a program of work for 1933. Projects taken were: Room Improvement, Sewing and Canning.

"Happy Juniors" 4-H Club of South Woodstock Organize

"Happy Juniors" of South Woodstock reorganized their club with a new leader, Mrs. J. M. Barrett. The girls are planning to take Sewing and Cooking and Housekeeping.

Why I Am a 4-H Club Leader

When I organized my first 4-H Club and became a 4-H Club Leader, five years ago last March, it was at the request of the Home Demonstration Agent, but that is now least of the reasons why I am still a leader. There being only my husband and myself in the family, I have some time available for interests outside of my home duties. I could never be content to fill my whole time with the duties of so small a famliy. Before my marriage, I taught Home Economics in both grade school and high school and was very much interested in my work. Girls' 4-H Club work is along exactly the same line and very reasonably, I enjoy that. Also, I very much enjoy working with girls of club age. The contact which I have with them adds to my happiness in life, and I sincerely hope and feel that they enjoy my friendship and appreciate my interest in each one of them.

I believe that 4-H Club work has a distinct place in the program of rural education. In cities and larger towns the public school system provides an opportunity for vocational education. But the rural boys and girls have no such opportunity in their regular schools. 4-H Club work reaches these boys and girls, giving them, without additional cost to the taxpayers, a very well rounded training in either agriculture or home economics. In addition, they are taught to conduct the business of their clubs according to parliamentary rules. Leadership is developed and self-confidence encouraged through demonstrations and entertainments. They are taught to work together and play together, thus fitting them to take their places in adult life later on.

To be a successful club leader is not an easy job, and it necessitates a great amount of work and time, to say nothing of patience and tact. But to me, the satisfaction gained in helping prepare the girls to meet the duties of adult life and the enjoyment I have in my contact with them rewards me for all my efforts, to make our club a success.—Mrs. Morris L. Ellingwood, Leader, "Co-Workers" 4-H Club, West Sumner.

Who Do You Think?

Who do you think is an outstanding farmer or home-maker in your community? Certainly you know of at least one whom you believe deserves the honor of recognition for their services to the home and community, county or state. The term outstanding farmer and homemaker is used in reference to the person who:

1. Has made farming his chief life work, or has devoted much or all of her life to the duties of a rural home-maker.
2. Is recognized as a successful farmer or rural home-maker.
3. Has contributed largely to the welfare of the community through leadership and to the agriculture or home life of the town, county, state, or nation.

Blanks to fill out in nominating persons are obtainable at the Farm Bureau office, South Paris, and must be filled out and returned on or before Nov. 30 in order to be considered by the county committee during December.

LOVELL

Jessie M. Noyes

Jessie M. Noyes, widow of the late Dr. E. J. Noyes, died very suddenly at 7:30 Thursday evening Nov. 10, after an illness of less than a week. Mrs. Noyes was born in St. Peters, N. S., Aug. 1, 1882, the second daughter of Kenneth and Annie MacLean.

In 1900 she came with her family to Augusta, where she attended the local schools. In 1906 she graduated from Shaw's Business College. In 1907 she entered as a probationer at the Maine General Hospital, graduating from that institution in the class of 1910. She followed her profession until she met and married Dr. Noyes in 1917.

Since her marriage she has been a resident of Lovell. In times of sickness and distress in the neighborhood she has always given freely of her services and skill as a nurse and has attended at the bedside of many not only in this town, but in surrounding towns—a faithful servant in time of need—"Well done, good and faithful servant; thou has been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord". For "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends".

Mrs. Noyes was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star. She leaves to mourn their loss, her mother, Mrs. Charles H. Davis, one sister, Mrs. Charles. Pease, and many nephews and nieces, and hosts of friends.

The remains were taken to Augusta, Friday, and buried in the family lot. Commitment services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. Andrew McWhorter, pastor of the Augusta Congregational church.

BATES—WEST PARIS

One of the pleasant events in this town was the group of ladies who met Friday evening at Fannie Cummings' to feast together while their respective husbands were supposedly at the Father-Son Banquet held that night in the hall. Two hundred and twenty-five were there, but nine sat at Mrs. Cummings' attractive table with its goodies. Those who were there were Mrs. Lucinda Waterhouse, mother of Mrs. Cummings; Mrs., Flora Cummings, mother of Mr. Cummings; Mrs. Nellie Noyes, sister to Mrs. Cummings, as were also Elizabeth and Myrtle Waterhouse, Mrs. Helmi Cummings, who with Flora Cummings, was present, and Miss Helmi Cummings and little lady Cathryn made a party of nine. A brother's wife, Mrs. Eddie Waterhouse, was also invited, but failed to come. After eating their fill, the younger ladies cleared the table, washing the dishes, while Lucinda Waterhouse and Flora Cummings went over to Jennie Cummings' to attend a cottage prayer meeting held there. "An enjoyable occasion," exclaimed Mr.

Flora Cummings returned to her home on Oxford Fore Street, Saturday morning. Fannie Cummings accompanied her brother, George Waterhouse, to Lewiston the same day, on a business trip.

Thursday, Flora Cummings was a dinner guest of Mrs. Ada Lord and supper guest of her son and family, C. J. Cummings.

Flags floated in the breeze and citizens showed deference to the living and dead of the World War and though not as hearty (except at dining table) as the first few Armistice Days all are pleased that no row or riot as the paper tells us Lewiston witnessed, disturbed the peace. What a time for such a day!

AT HOME ON THANKSGIVING

It's home on Thanksgiving,
From city and town;
Where dear sons and daughters
Just gather aroun'.

Where hearts again ring,
And smiles brighten up;
As though to a party,
They're sitting to sup.

The family is there,
At home for a day;
With Mother and Father,
Whose hair has turned gray.

For, there they are welcomed,
As much as can be;
From miles o'er the country,
And miles o'er the sea.

The Way We Look at it

We look upon our work as an opportunity to be of service. It has practically the same problems as any other business or profession and is subject in the same way to common sense and fair dealing. But we think it gives unusual scope for sympathy and thoughtfulness, and these qualities have a large part in the ideal we set for ourselves.

CHURCH OBSERVANCES TO MARK CLOSE OF BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The George Washington Bicentennial Celebration will be brought to a close on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24, in the same manner in which it began on Feb. 22—with religious services in honor of George Washington in all the churches of America.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission estimates that more than 75,000 churches will participate in separate Thanksgiving Bicentennial exercises. In many cities and towns, the Bicentennial Commission reports churches of all denominations will hold joint commemorative Thanksgiving Day exercises in honor of the Father of his country.

The reports from the religious societies of America indicate that every church of the land will participate in this closing tribute, either by holding separate Bicentennial exercises or by joining with the other churches of their community in a combined celebration.

The Bicentennial Celebration has been going on in all parts of the world for the past nine months. More than 700,000 separate committees, representing the schools and churches, as well as civic, fraternal and patriotic societies have been actively engaged in honoring the memory of George Washington on the Two Hundredth Anniversary of his birth. Every state, city and town in the United States has participated. Besides the celebration has been carried out in all our territories and dependencies as well as in seventy-eight foreign countries.

The records of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission indicate that to date more than one million separate Bicentennial programs have been held in all parts of the world.

This unprecedented celebration—the greatest tribute ever paid to a national hero—will come to an official close with observances of simplicity and respect. A united nation will show its reverence and admiration for its founder.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission announces that it has prepared special booklets to assist organizations in arranging their Thanksgiving Day celebration programs. More than 25,000 of these booklets have already been distributed. In addition the Commission had prepared a book of sermons made up of contributions from the leading clergymen of the various denominations of America. These sermon books have been distributed primarily to churches in small cities and towns where facilities for research are not abundant. Copies may still be procured by writing to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission in Washington, D. C.

Maine Publicity Bureau

TO REMOVE ADVERTISING

A vigorous effort to remove unsightly advertising signs and political notices from electric light poles and other transmission equipment, located along the highways in its territory, is now underway. This action was prompted by a desire of the power company to cooperate with the various State organizations in their road beautification activities.

More than the usual number of political advertisements had been tacked to poles during the recent campaign and the practice was being resorted to by commercial advertisers to such an extent that it not only has created an unsightly nuisance along Maine's highways, but is a distinct hazard to linemen who climb the poles.

The Central Maine Power Company has published a pamphlet quoting the Revised Statutes of 1930 which make such an offense, without the consent of the owners or municipal officers, in the case of public highway, punishable by fine.

In this pamphlet attention was also called to the dangers of throwing stones at insulators, resulting in broken wires, which might deprive an entire town of electric service, causing thousands of dollars damage and possible loss of life. The unlawful and intentional breaking of any insulator wire or other transmission equipment is punishable by a fine or imprisonment.

TWO MEN HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Philip M. Everett and George A. Bowman of Norway were cut, bruised and badly shaken up when the Ford truck in which they were riding bowled over after being struck by a Studebaker touring car in which were Philip H. McAllister and his son, Pete, also of Norway. The Studebaker was not damaged and occupants not hurt.

The accident occurred about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, opposite the Arthur Bean place near the Waterford-Greenwood turn. Both cars were traveling towards Norway Lake and McAllister, in attempting to pass the truck, crashed into the rear end. The top of the Ford was stripped from the chassis and the machine turned over in the ditch. The two occupants crawled from the wreckage and were taken to Norway Village.

Mr. Everett is confined to the house with cuts and bruises and Allie Bowman, though able to get out, has many lame joints.

Temperature moderated and a steady downpour settled in for the day until cooler, clearing weather arrived before midnight. Streams reached freshet pitch and Tannery Brook overflowed a part of the meadow between Norway Branch and Elm Hill. The Red Cross membership drive is progressing and results are more encouraging than was first thought and while the total membership will not equal that of last year, the canvassers have met with better response since the first days of the canvass. While the result will not be known until after Thanksgiving Day, it will be better than anticipated. Some vegetables and apples have been donated from the rural districts which will help many families.
